

About the Internship

The Allyson Clark Communication Intern will live on Daraja Academy's campus in Nanyuki, Kenya, and work closely with Daraja's California office. The intern's role is to help improve communication efforts and engage donors by creating social media and blog posts, taking photos and videos, and gathering stories. The intern also supports the Daraja staff, edits and manages the student newspaper, and acts as a role model for the girls. This internship provides a unique way to gain nonprofit marketing experience and elevate Daraja's crucial mission.

Qualifications:

- Own a laptop
- Has a current passport
- Fluent in English (can communicate in the cadence of American English)
- Excellent writing skills
- Outgoing and sociable
- Firm understanding of social media applications such as Facebook
- Flexible personality and positive, helpful attitude
- Able to juggle multiple tasks at once
- College graduate
- Preferred: international experience, familiarity with photography and video editing, and social media marketing experience.

Compensation

Thanks to the generosity of donations made in memory of Allyson Clark, interns receive free room and board, a roundtrip flight, and a $500 stipend.

You should know

Daraja is located in a remote area and access to transportation is somewhat limited. Living conditions are best described as rustic, and interns should be prepared to experience life "in the bush." However, interns have access to restaurants, safaris, and other excursions. Interns will pay for travel and souvenirs, but our team will help plan and schedule any non-work trips for free.

How to Apply

Your application should include a resume and cover letter addressed to the Allyson Clark Internship. Send your application and any questions to:
